The cost of the opioid epidemic is staggering – in human loss and suffering, generational harm to families and communities, and the massive stress on the health care system and public agencies. What is being done in our region - ranked among the highest in the U.S. for opioid fatalities – to confront the crisis? This panel discussion brings together distinguished leaders who are at the forefront to offer perspectives from clinical, public health, government policy, health system, and evidence-based treatment points-of-view.
